

Baltic Updates, October 2006

Finally some good news. Alexei spent a professional life as a Soviet engineer, working at a high level in mechanical design of machinery for the collective farms. He is a highly educated and intelligent person. Now in his 70s, he suffered a stroke, which focused his mind on the things of God. Unable to do what he used to physically, he decided to become computer literate and study how to use the internet; and so he went on a course in his town for people who wanted to learn how to use the internet. He had a coffee cup, on which was the advert for www.carelinks.net . So this was the first address he typed in to the computer; he learnt to navigate around pages etc. from using our site. And of course there he learnt much about the truth. We also gave him a Bible and hard copies of Bible Basics and other literature. Having met several times, it was our pleasure to baptize him recently.

Photo: Bro. Alexei rejoicing with us just after his baptism

With love from your brothers and sisters of CCM